The Citadel of 1947

FOREWORD

The 1947 CITADEL is a symbol of the knowledge we have gained and the spirit of co-operation that has come to us during our high school career.

Persistent work, along with the assistance and guidance of Mrs. Palicki has made this book possible. Our many generous advertisers has aided us greatly with the financial problems that confronted us. We take this opportunity to extend our thanks to them. We also wish to thank Mr. Prible and all other faculty members for their assistance.

As our chain of memories grows and we look back on days past we believe that one of the brightest links in that chain will be our school days. If, in the unpredictable years ahead, you can look at this CITADEL and recall some small happening of those days our work will not have been in vain.

CO-EDITORS (Leona-Mae Hatch and Billie Sage)

DEDICATION

We wish to dedicate this 1947 CITADEL to our patient and understanding parents. They have helped us through the most happy and formative years of our lives with careful and thoughtful guidance. For this we owe them much more than we shall ever be able to repay. May this dedication show them, in a small way, our gratitude and appreciation.

Class History

In 1935 the class of "47" began education with Miss Mildred Sauders as their teacher and thirty members in the class. Out of this class, Leona Hatch, Wayne Surfus, Carol Tucker, Wayne Waters, Delores Weaver, Dale Sloffer, Don Opliger, LaVern May, Don Plummer, Russell Sordelet, Lois Caley, and Dora Ritter have been faithful to Huntertown for twelve years. As they started their way onward they became acquainted with Phyllis Croxton, Helen Gump, Leonard Karasiewicz, Ted Meyer, Roy Peters, Max Smith, Bernard Whonsettler, Bob Frazier, Don Brown and Bill Bremer.

After receiving our diplomas from the eighth grade, we were ushered into the assembly to begin our course of High School work with an enrollment of sixty-five pupils. Dolores Fritz, Pat Couture, Betty Hanauer, Murry Gause, Dorothy Leiter, Betty Steinbarger, Ara Jean Shank, Elva Shafer, Rosemary Stirlen, Joseph Anerson, Ruth Wider and Rosemary Minton were added to our class. Our first class party was held at Baraba Searfoss's home. As is the usual custom, we were fully initiated at the party by upper classmen; but we had no mishaps. Upon entering our Sophomore year we welcomed Suzanne Bobay to our class. This year we had a chili supper at the school which was followed by a scavenger hunt. Mrs. Dubsky and Miss Greenwalt were our sponsors.

In "46", now Juniors we had Miss Enley and Mr. Appleman as our sponsors and Bob Frazier, Don Brown, Pat Couture and Wayne Surfus our class officers. After the basketball games the class opened the canteen and during the game we sold ice cream. The Junior play was December 6 and 7 and was a three act comedy, titled "Tomboy". For our Junior-Senior banquet of 1946, a ship motif was used. Eva Johnson and Anne Rondot entered our class this year.

At last, in 1947 we entered school as full fledged Seniors. Some of our outstanding days were picture day, and ordering our caps and gowns. "Find a Way or Make One" was our class motto; flower, pink carnation; colors, blue and white. The class consisting of thirty-eight members was held on May 10 and commencement on May 13. The class officers for our last year were Russell Sordelet, as president; Max Smith, vice president; Pat Couture, secretary; and Elva Shafer, treasurer. The sponsors were Miss Hoff and Mr. Prible.

We are now leaving the halls of Huntertown and getting ready to either "find a way or make one." Our new class history will now begin in the different roads of life.

FROM OUR SCHOOL SLATE

The time is the twenty-first century and as we walk into the Plaza Building which houses a large rocket ship concern, we run into Billie Sage and Leona Hatch, former editors of the Citadel, preparing to take a trip to Huntertown, our old home town. Having been asked to go along we all entered the ship and took off for the scene of our childhood. In just a few minutes, our ship landed at the Huntertown Haven for Happy Rocket-ships. Stepping nimbly from the ship we proceeded through the revolving doors and somehow managed to get tangled up with about the tallest man we had ever seen. Upon closer observation we recognized Joe Anderson, world famed as the tallest man in the universe, with him was his wife, the lovely and charming Suzanne Bobay. Joe and Suzanne had but a few minutes to talk and immediately began to inform us as to the whereabouts of our former classmates. Russell Sordelet and Don Plummer were engaged as partners in a business, teaching students how to wreck a car in the quickest, easiest method with the least amount of injury to themselves. Their silent partner in this enterprise is Bill Bremer who then sells more cars (Fords naturally) to the students' parents. In this way they have managed to make themselves billion-aire. However, Joe says, the richest man in Huntertown is the town bum, Wayne Waters, who through the generosity of the Huntertown public begs millions every week. "Well," says Joe, "we have to leave. Take care of yourselves." Waving aloha to that happily married couple we continue down the main street, Ritter Avenue, named after a great native philanthropist, Dora Q. Ritter, who donated millions to the townspeople. "Oh, what a beautiful gown!" said Billie, spying one in the window of Elsworth P. Penny-pincher Paree Salon. This lovely shop is now owned and operated by Lois Caley and Helen Gump, second and third wives of E. P. Penny-pincher. (It is rumored that they married him for his trillions.) Poor Elsworth P., who because he could not undergo the rowdy ways of his last two wives, passed away very suddenly.

Rushing in to try on the gown, Phyllis Croxton, a sophisticated saleslady in every sense of the word, waited on us. The Shop, operated in the true way of a Paris shop, had their clothes modeled. From out of the silken draperies came Rosemary Minton with her fair hair drawn back in a chignon and her beautiful figure covered with the lovely gown, she walked with the inspiring grace of a model. Gazing around me I saw Betty Hanauer Karasiewicz, wife of the tobacco auctioneer, talking over the merits of the gown with Elva Shafer Whonsetler, wife of that terrific basketball center, Bernie "Flash" Whonsetler. Sitting alone over in the corner, looking very uncomfortable, was Roy Peters, trying to choose a gown for his wife, Patricia Couture Peter's birthday. Billie finally decided to buy the gown and so we left the shop and again wondered among the multitudes on Ritter Avenue.

Rounding a corner Leona bumped into a small and timid little lady with a pince nez perched on the end of her nose and several library books in her arms. With a cry of recognition she tippytoed toward us and said a quiet hello. The little old lady was Anne Rondot, chief librarian. She invited us to come to the library and visit so we ankled over. Wandering around in the children's section we were surrounded by the Surfus-Stienbarger clan who were too numerous to mention. They were quietly driving their nurse, Deloris Fritz, crazy. Walzing on into the research department of the building, we notice a horrible odor. Finding the source to be Professors Smith and Brown, still eligible bachelors, burning sulfur in the drawers of the table to keep the atmosphere just right for their further research on chemistry. We rushed out into the back corridor only to burst into the middle of an argument between Murray Gause and his wife, Carol Tucker Gause, as to who will go in and remove the two profs. Raising the window to get a breath of fresh air, a newspaper smacked Leona in the face, and as she disengaged herself we noticed the six inch headlines on the sensational divorce of singer Don Opliger and his wife, Actress LaVern May. Don sued for divorce because he found he was still in love with LaVern's sister, Eileen, and said he only married LaVern because he did not want to desert his dear old class. His attorneys in the case were Eva Johnson, noted for her bass voice and power of expression; and Ruth Widner, noted for her eloquency in the courtroom.

Still amazed at this turn in the life of Don and LaVern we left the pretentious building and who should we meet walking arm in arm along the street but Theodore Meyer and sultry blonde wife, the former Rosemary Stirlen, who ask us to be guests at a dinner party honoring Ara Jean Shank, authoress of the famous book "Why Wouldn't Richard Open the Door For Kilroy." Other couples at the party were to be Robert Frazier and his wife, Dorothy Leiter; Dale Sloffer and his wife, Dee Weaver, who reside in suburban Podunk in rose covered cottages.

As we were taking off in the rocket ship the bell on the dashboard started ringing, warning us that we were loosing altitude. The rocket crashed to the ground. With this crash we woke up and found that we had just fallen out of our seat in Sociology.

Citadel

Billie Sage and Leona Hatch were appointed by Mrs. Palicki as co-editors of the "CITADEL" this year. They have been working hard to fulfill the responsibility of this position. Taking care of the financial affairs involved in raising money for the "CITADEL" are Rosemary Stirlen, business manager, and Roy Peters, assistant business manager. The sales manager is Anne Rondot and assisting her in selling subscriptions are Joe Anderson, Ara Jean Shank, Phyllis Croxton, Betty Hanauer, Don Plummer and Dora Ritter. On the advertising staff are Dale Sloffer, advertising manager, Russell Sordelet, Leonard Karasiewicz and Murray Gause.

Wayne Waters has been kept busy taking pictures of outstanding interest to everyone. Whether he said, "Look at the birdie", "Smile your prettiest", or simply took you by surprise, his technique seems to have gotten results. Other positions on the staff were filled by Carol Tucker, Helen Gump, Elva Shafer and Lois Caley in charge of the organization; Dorothy Leiter, Dolores Fritz, Betty Stienbarger, Eva Johnson, Pat Couture and LaVern May in charge of the various grades and faculty. Of course the yearbook wouldn't be complete without the sports section so Delores Weaver, Rosemary Minton, Ruth Widner, Ted Meyer and Suzanne Bobay were given the responsibility of keeping us informed about the sports world.

Last but by far not "least" is Mrs. Palicki who has been of great value to the staff by giving us advice and information on how to publish a yearbook. This concludes the staff of the 1946-47 yearbook, the CITADEL.

Black and Gold Flash

Thirty-six busy, energetic journalism students are getting the last issue of the Black and Gold Flash ready for the press. In the cafeteria we locate Pat Courture and Elva Shafer (editors) working feverishly trying to fill up the front page, with the able assistance of their reporters: Delores Fritz, Rosemary Stirlen, Joe Anderson, Eva Johnson, Leonard Karasiewicz, Roy Peters, La Vern May, Leona Hatch, Ted Meyers and Lois Caley.

At another table we view Bernie Whonsetler, Don Brown, Max Smith and Bob Frazier in a huddle writing up the latest sport activities. On our way upstairs we stop to write a pass for Dale Sloffer, Murray Gause, Bill Bremer, Don Plummer and Wayne Surfus who are collecting money for ads. Dashing on up to the typing room who should we see pounding a Royal but Wayne Waters, sports writer, with Russell Sordelet and Delores Weaver (sports editors) keeping him busy.

Hurrying down the stairs we nearly bump into Dorothy Leiter who has just collected the latest in grade news. As we hasten down the main hall we meet Anne Rondot and Carol Tucker (feature editors) hunting up some new victims for the Inquiring Reporter. We breeze on past the office where Billie Sage (feature editor) is hard at work at the typewriter while Betty Stienbarger and Ara Jean Shank (feature writers) are waiting their turn.

Hastily proof-reading at the eleventh hour we heave a sigh of relief as we hand the finished product to Ted Meyers who delivers the paper to our printer at Churubusco.

Just a week later the art room is the scene of activity as Phyllis Croxton and Roy Peters (circulation managers) and their helpers sort papers. From here Dorothy Leiter, (exchange editor) Lois Caley and Leona Hatch see that the papers are mailed. Helping on the town delivery are Suzanne Bobay, Ruth Widner, Delores Weaver, Don Plummer and Murray Gause. At noon the halls are alive with activity as the papers finally reach the hands of the students and the money reaches the hands of our very capable business manager, Helen Gump.

Thus the seniors of '47 close up shop and leave the work of The Black and Gold Flash to future journalism students of Hometown High School.

First row: C. Tucker, L. Hatch, B. Sage, A. Rondot, P. Croxton, E. Johnson, R. Widner, R. Minton, D. Ritter, E. Shafer, D. Fritz, Miss Hoff.

Second row: B. Frazier, D. Brown, D. Leiter, B. Stienbarger, J. Shank, S. Bobay, R. Stirlen, B. Hanauer, P. Couture, L. May, M. Gause.

Band

Remember how early we had to roll out that "big" morning we took off for Indianapolis to do our bit in the Farmers Parade at the state fair last fall? We had a good time but were sure dragging our dogs by nightfall.

This year we are in a new remodeled room; it isn't complete, but a great improvement over that cold gym, especially when the weather man goes off on a tangent. We will be all set when we get those new uniforms the trustees have almost promised. However, don't forget, we must keep asking for them.

In reminiscing, we will long remember the band in its performance the night of the C. C. game when all the lights were turned out and each member then pressed the button on his red, blue or green flashlight. Silent Night and Come All Ye Faithful sort of made us forget our depressed feeling of the way the game was going. The music performed by the band was somewhat varied. The overture to the operetta "The Student Prince", a novelty "The Kid Grows Up" and Joan Schenher singing "Memories" and "Winter Wonderland" were among the most interesting musical numbers presented during the year. The latter probably accounts for the most peppy interest in the organization. Seven students, Lois Caley, Pat Couture, Helen Gump, Delores Weaver, Dale Sloffer, Russell Sordelet and Wayne Waters are completing their senior year in the band.

Junior Class Play

Miss Lucinda Enley, director of the Junior Play, enjoyed, along with the Junior Class, another successful play. The cast of the play, Vampire Bat, written by Robert Sinclair, was headed by Francis Dunten and Jack Davis. Outstanding in their character roles were Jim Buchanan as the negro Zombie and Donald Konger as Jugobia. Providing the comedy for the play were Phil Hyndman and Barbara Maxey cast as two young lovers. The play was presented to the public, December 12 and 13. Other roles were portrayed by Helen Engleright, Eleanor Arnold, Wilma Taner, Fred Highlen, Mary Beckett.

ENSEMBLE

Dressed in white blouses and black skirts the girls ensemble under the direction of Miss Harrod, have participated in many programs this year. The seven girls are: l. to r.) L. Hatch, C. Tucker, J. Schenher, P. Keller, B. Sloffer, V. Bunn. Absent: D Weaver.

DOUBLE QUARTET

Four girls and four boys: L. Hatch, A. Rondot, P. Couture, L. Brown, B. Horstmeyer, G. Hatch (absent: L. Caley, W. Surfus) were selected from the chorus to form a double quartet. Guided by Miss Harrod they sang for several programs during the year.

Third Row: A. Rondot, L. Hatch, C. Tucker, J. Schenher, M. Stone, P. Keller, P. Kelham, L. Siples, L. Gordon, D. Siples, R. Knight, G. Knight, J. Ruger, D. Opliger, V. Bunn, B. Hanauer, B. Sloffer, L. May.

Chorus

For the second year the mixed chorus of H.H.S. has enjoyed a successful season of musical programs under the direction of Miss Ruth Harrod. Singing for the Teachers Institute was the beginning program, and the season was climaxed by the Spring festival. Several other county schools participated in the festival which was under the direction of Noble Kain. The chorus has a point system which enables students to make pins, letters or sweaters by extra activities. Officers elected for this year are: President, Don Opiger; Vice pres., Wayne Surfus; secretary, Carol Tucker; librarian, Joan Schenher, and properties, Jack McComb.

JANITORS

Sweeping floors and washing caricatures off the walls are only a few of the jobs performed by our two loyal janitors, Sidney Dunten and Lester Borne. They have been with us nearly five and four years respectively.

OPERATORS OF MOVIE PROJECTOR

Behind the movie projector this year, we find four boys: Clem Wetzel, Jack Davis, Ray Cummins and Roy Peters. They have enabled us to enjoy those "super-duper" motion pictures throughout the year.

COOKS

Nutritious and well-balanced hot meals were served to us by the cooks throughout the year. They are as follows (left to right): Edna Malcolm, Clara McCombs, Velma May, Kathern Emerick, and Jessie Dice.
